ABSTRACT: This research note aims to disclose a copy of Oviedo’s About the natural history of the Indies, also known as Summary of the natural history, published in Toledo in 1526 and currently under the custody of Municipal Library of Porto, Portugal. Special features of this copy are presented: author’s handwritten signature and some ownership marks that allow us to identify previous owners, the connections between them and to track book circulation.

KEY WORDS: Gonzalo Fernández de Oviedo; About the Natural History of the Indies, Handwritten Signature; Previous Owners; Book Circulation.

UNA FIRMA AUTÓGRAFA DE GONZALO FERNÁNDEZ DE OVIEDO, ANTIGUOS POSEEDORES Y CIRCULACIÓN DE UN EJEMPLAR “DE LA NATURAL HISTORIA DE LAS INDIAS”

RESUMEN: Esta nota de investigación tiene como objetivo revelar una copia de Oviedo De la natural Historia de las Indias, también conocida como Sumario de historia natural, publicada en Toledo en 1526 y actualmente bajo la custodia de la Biblioteca Municipal de Oporto, Portugal. Se presentan las características especiales de este ejemplar: una firma manuscrita del autor y algunas marcas de propiedad que nos permiten identificar a los anteriores dueños, las conexiones entre ellos y rutas de circulación del libro.

PALABRAS CLAVE: Gonzalo Fernández de Oviedo; De la natural Historia de las Indias, Firma autógrafa; Antiguos poseedores; Circulación del libro.

Almost everything has been written about the life, work and legacy of Gonzalo Fernández de Oviedo (1478–1557). This is more than enough to not duplicate here his biography and works\(^1\), even briefly. In that context and anchored in primary and secondary sources, this research note will focus on the following two specific topics.

AN UNKNOWN HANDWRITTEN SIGNATURE BY GONZALO FERNÁNDEZ DE OVIEDO (1478-1557)

In mid-2012, during partial work of raising old and rare scientific books in Municipal Library of Porto heritage collections, I came upon a copy\(^2\) - shelfmark U-12-8 - of the work which began Oviedo’s career as a chronicler of the West Indies. At the time I retained in memory the beautiful architectural frontispiece of De la natural Historia de las Indias and an elegant handwritten signature inside the roundel (Fig. 1); later, I have made several readings and research of which I give here a summary note\(^3\). I am now able to affirm that this copy has an unambiguous handwritten signature of Gonzalo Fernández de Oviedo. I compared this signature, which appears inside the heraldic medallion at the bottom of the title page, with another author’s signature on an autograph manuscript preserved in the Royal Library of San Lorenzo of the Escorial (Fig. 2). In both documents the signatures are very similar\(^4\). Let’s look at the evidence from these collated primary sources:

OVIDEO’S ABOUT THE NATURAL HISTORY OF THE IN-DIES: PREVIOUS OWNERS AND BOOK CIRCULATION

We do not know how this book signed by Oviedo ended into the hands of Sir Hans Sloane (1660-1753), proprietary of one of the largest libraries in Europe of his time (Does the book travelled directly to Great Britain? Does it crossed France or other European countries?), but we know that Sloane owned two copies of Oviedo’s De la natural Historia de las Indias (Toledo, 1526). Both copies - BPMP U-12-8 and BL C.63.k.7.(1.) - have inscribed alphanumeric marks, the most common form used by Sloane to number and categorize his books, but only one of them (shelfmark BPMP) bears Oviedo’s handwritten signature. This copy here under analysis has Sloane number A 583 (Fig. 3). It should be noted that another work by Oviedo, a French edition of L’histoire Naturelle Et Generale Des Indes... (Paris, 1556), currently in the British Library (BL 601.m.15.), is probably from Sloane’s collection\(^5\).

After Sloane’s dead his collection of books (including those above mentioned) and manuscripts formed one of the foundation collections of the British Museum Library, later British Library. In this context, the printed titles were stamped with the distinctive British Museum ownership mark, the octagonal ‘Museum Britannicum’ black stamp. The British Museum held several sales of duplicate items. Our Summary’s copy was registered as duplicate and stamped ‘British Museum Sale Duplicate 1787’ (Fig. 3).

The auction, promoted by Leigh and Sotheby, took place in March 1788 and the book was bought by “Pinto”, i.e., Luís Pinto de Sousa Coutinho (1735-1804), Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary from Portugal in London, later 1st Viscount of Balsemão. This bibliophile returned to Portugal with the books which, after his death, were inherited by his son, Luís Máximo Alfredo Pinto de Sousa Coutinho (1774-1832), 2nd Viscount of Balsemão.

During the Portuguese Civil War, also known as Liberal Wars or War of the Two Brothers (1828-1834), the remarkable library of the Viscounts of Balsemão, supporters of the absolutist party, was kidnapped by the victorious liberals, inventoried and incorporated (in a dispersed way) into the newly established (1833) Oporto Royal Public Library, nowadays Municipal Library of Porto, Portugal. Oviedo’s De la natural Historia de las Indias reference in the auction catalog matches the one in the ‘inventory’ of Balsemão library (Fig. 4).
After circulating among aristocratic owners and travelling through private and public libraries, at least across three European countries – Spain, United Kingdom and Portugal – this copy of Oviedo’s Summary, an example of book circulation and knowledge transmission (Fig. 5), lies in the Municipal Library of Porto waiting to be rediscovered by researchers and readers.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I wish to express my sincere gratitude to Paula Andrade Martins for the valuable help given during the preparation of this paper in draft form, especially in the illustrations and text review. I would also like to thank Professor Henrique Leitão (CIUHCT, University of Lisbon) for the encouragement to publish my research note on this subject. I am also grateful to the anonymous referees of this text for their helpful suggestions.

NOTES

1. The bibliography on Oviedo is, fortunately, very extensive. A selection of two dozen titles may be cited as an example – see Bibliography section below.

2. View BPMP catalog record - URL: http://bibliotecas.cm-porto.pt/ipac20/ipac.jsp?urll=3100024~1453462~10

3. Further to this now disclosed specimen, I have knowledge of a few copies of Summary presumably signed by the author (despite the differentiated signatures), e.g.: University of Virginia Library, Special Collections, E141 O91; Princeton University Library, Rare Books Collection, EKKA Americana 1526 Oviedo and Biblioteca Nacional de España, R/3864. Henry Harrisse (1829-1910)
4. In this case the match is almost perfect; however Oviedo’s handwritten signature is not always thoroughly uniform, as can be seen at Oviedo’s General History ("Montserrat Manuscript", Ms. HM 177, The Huntington Library, San Marino, CA., USA and Ms. 9/555, Real Academia de la Historia, España) and Libro de la Cámara Real del príncipe don Juan e oficios de su casa e servicio ordinario, Ms. II/826, Biblioteca del Palacio Real de Madrid.
